

Rocky Mountaineer's US route, Rockies to the Red Rocks, returns for its 2025 operating season this April. The route, which launched in 2021, travels between Denver, Colorado and Moab, Utah with an overnight stop in Glenwood Springs, Colorado. The Rockies to the Red Rocks route is a two-day rail journey boasting all of the premium elements that make up the unparalleled Rocky Mountaineer experience. Guests can expect spacious glass-domed train coaches, incredible scenery, onboard storytelling, delicious cuisine, friendly service, and a social atmosphere.

The route also features stunning landscapes - between Denver and Glenwood Springs, guests journey alongside the Colorado River and through a series of canyons with steep rugged rock walls, while the route between Glenwood Springs and Moab highlights mountain vistas, desert cliffs and rock formations. The onboard culinary experience features cuisine prepared using ingredients local to the Southwestern U.S., which is complemented with beverage service and served directly to guests' seats, so they can enjoy the scenery as they dine.

What's new for 2025: The Rockies to the Red Rocks route will have 8 additional departures in the 2025 season, running from April 9 to November 18, which gives travellers even more time to experience all that the American Southwest has to offer. Executive Chef Kaelhub Cudmore has been working with local suppliers to enhance the onboard dining experience with more regionally inspired and locally sourced choices, such as desserts from Gateaux Bakery in Denver, treats from Afternoon Delight Bakery in Glenwood Springs, breakfast pastries from Miss Molly Bakery and jams from Yummy Lotus Jams, both in Denver.
